

Everyone was issued with an I D card, even children. There was a great fear of enemy spies. Italians and Germans living in Scotland when war broke out were interned in camps although measures were later relaxed.